Forecast For London & Southeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Tuesday 06 Jul 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Blustery showers this morning. Drier and brighter for many later.

Today:
A windy start, especially around coasts with local gales for a time. Scattered showers, some heavy through the morning with sunny intervals. Generally drier this afternoon and less windy, a few showers in the north, but sunnier and drier elsewhere. Maximum temperature 20 deg C (68 deg F).

Tonight:
Any showers soon easing this evening and widespread clear spells developing. Clouding over after midnight in many parts with a few showers possible towards the north and west. Winds easing. Minimum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Wednesday:
Largely dry but cloudy to start. Sunny spells developing through the morning and into the afternoon. Occasional showers, some heavy and thundery in the north. Drier and sunnier further south. Maximum temperature 22 deg C (72 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Early mist and low cloud clearing to sunshine and showers; some heavy on Thursday. Further scattered showers Friday, but lighter than Thursday. A fine start Saturday, rain or showers later.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.